Writing a travel blog

In October, Lucas Marques is going to fly to Delhi in India. But he isn't going to stay in hotels or eat in restaurants. He's going to live with families and shop in markets and write his blog.

His followers don't have much money, so Lucas writes about the cheapest ways to get around. 'You don't have to travel by plane', he says. 'You can use public transport such as buses.' Last year, he travelled around Brazil on a motorbike. Next year, he's going to cycle across Switzerland.

When Lucas was a child, he lived in Manchester, England, but every summer, his parents took him to a different country. When Lucas was eighteen, he left England for a year. He went to Thailand and got a job as an English teacher for six months. Then he travelled around the country and started to write his blog.

What advice does Lucas give to people who want to travel? 'Before you go to a country you should learn about the culture. You don't have to learn a lot of the language, but it's a good idea to know a few words.'
